Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing consumption, severe coughs, croup, asthma, pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one little, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all druggists and dealers in the United States and Canada.

WEDNESDAY JUNE 22, 1887

Not only is Reno the metropolis, but it well merits the honor of being called the "Athens of Nevada." The public schools are equal to the best; the other three institutions of learning have no competitors. In short Reno has all the academic institutions located within the State, viz: The State University, Mount St. Mary's Academy and Bishop Whitaker's School for Girls. The Commencement exercises respectively of the former, which took place yesterday, and the latter to-day shows these schools to be exceedingly prosperous.

Bishop Whitaker's school owes its existence to the Bishop's self-sacrifice and untiring energies. In 1875 Miss Catherine L. Wolfe, of New York, gave towards the founding of the school $10,000 upon the condition that an equal sum should be given by others. The condition was met, numerous persons in Reno and vicinity contributing. With the $20,000 the school building was completed, and the school opened in October 1876. There are now thirty-five alumnae with a cheering prospect ahead for next year.

Mt. St. Mary's Academy was founded by the Sisters of St. Dominic in 1877. They rented for school purposes what is now known as Mr. J. Sunderland's brick residence. Forty pupils presented themselves on the first day of school, and the number increased so rapidly that the Sisters felt obliged to look about for a permanent location, and purchased the block upon which they erected the fine building that now graces the northeast corner of Fourth and Lake streets.

In 1878, when Reno was visited by fire, although the Sisters lost $7,000 the Academy withstood the ravages of the fire fiend. The bank failure and the grasshopper plague, even, failed to deter them in their efforts to establish this institution. Encouragement came to them from all parts of the country, and in a short time the good Sisters secured such encouragement as the proposed school merited.

Upon the prosperity of her schools largely depends Reno's other interests. Our people are to be congratulated on having in our midst these two model institutions, than which there are none better to be found anywhere.

The National Educational Association will meet in Chicago, July 12th, and continue in session three days. It is estimated that there will be in attendance 20,000 teachers, representing every State and Territory of the Union. At this meeting California and Nevada will be largely represented in an effort to secure for San Francisco the meeting for 1888. The prize is well worth the effort. The presence of such a body would do more to advertise the coast and its resources than any other organization that ever held a convention this side of the Rocky Mountains. The school superintendents would tell of what they see to their teachers, the teachers to their pupils, and superintendents and teachers to nearly every one of the 60,000,000 of people in this country. A prominent railroad official in San Francisco says that in advertising alone the convention would be worth $100,000 to the S. P. R. R. Company. Other industries too would receive their share of such valuable advertising. This is a practical view of the business advantages to be gained. The educational advantages to be derived therefrom would be of infinitely greater value.

The salary paid our primary teachers is $65 for ten months, or at the rate of $52.02 per month for the full year. Eureka pays her primary teachers $90 per month and Gold Hill her fourth primary teachers $90. Miss Harris formerly received at the State Orphans' Home $900 per annum and board, or what would be equal in the schools here to $1,200 per year. In comparison $650 per year seems a small-salary. Miss Turner goes to California because she can do better in the schools there. Several other teachers effect to do better. The Reno teachers receive very small salaries, as everybody knows who knows anything about the salaries paid in other sections of this coast. It is not to the credit of, nor in the interest of, the educational center of Nevada that our public school teachers be so poorly paid.

A Fatal Collision.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., June 22. This village was the scene of a terrible disaster yesterday afternoon at the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore depot, and the track for several hundred yards presents a horrible picture. The express due here at 5:55 had left the station and run but a few yards, when it was met by the congressional express from Washington, running at a high rate of speed, and a frightful wreck ensued. The fast express struck the baggage car of the south-bound train just as it crossed the switch below the depot and crashed into the parlor cars behind, overturning and demolishing two of them. No one on the north-bound train, was hurt, but on the south-bound train, of six cars full of passengers nearly all were more or less injured, and Alexander Gantrom, of Washington, D. C., was instantly killed.

A Fight with the Police.

BELFAST, June 22.—While the jubilee bands were passing through Carrick Hill park last evening, they were attacked by a party of Catholics. The Orangemen of this district took sides with the bands, and stones flew thick and fast for about fifteen minutes, when the police appeared and drove the mob down the narrow streets in the vicinity. The mob increased in numbers and returned and fought with greater violence than before, for fully an hour. The police, finding themselves powerless to cope with the rioters, summoned assistance, and when this came, their batons were drawn and the mob scattered in all directions. Several policemen were injured.

Victoria's Jubilee.

LONDON, June 22.—Dispatches from all parts of the world show that wherever there were Englishmen, yesterday was appropriately celebrated. Thousands of children are marching to Hyde Park to attend a young people's fete to be held there to-day in honor of the Queen's Jubilee.

Three young men from San Jose, one of whom is a nephew of General Preble, named Clayton, came into Carson yesterday afternoon on bicycles and took last evening's express train for home. They made the trip from San Jose to this place by way of Yosemite Valley and the Big Trees, riding on their bicycles when the roads permitted, and walking when they didn't. The young men must have had a royal good time. —Curson Index.

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY

Annual Exercises—Reno's Elite Present—Eloquent Conclusion—Father Kiley's Remarks—Distribution of Prizes—Graphic Description of Same.

Now in thy youth beseech of Him Who giveth, upbraiding not, That His light in thy heart become not dim, And His love's unforgot; And thy God in the darkest of days will be Greenness, and beauty and strength to thee.

BERNARD BARTON.

These lovely lines suggested themselves to your representative immediately upon entering the Academy last evening. Through the kindness of Mother Dolores we were shown the hall in all its glory. The first thing that struck our fancy was the drop curtain, which represents a scene on

"FATHER TIBER,"

Which Macaulay has immortalized in his poem of "Horatius." There was no "False Sextus" there, but the grand spires of St. Peters and the imposing dome of the famous castle of St. Angelo stood out grandly on the canvass. The scene reminded your poorly educated representative of classic days, when first he trod the Appian Way and witnessed the gathering of the degenerate descendants of former glory, who now occupy places in which they dispense with the tropical productions of sunny Italy. Around the room, and on the carefully decorated walls he noticed some of the finest specimens of the

TAPESTRICAL WORLD

That has ever been our privilege to witness. From the crazy quilt to the more excellent piano cover, embracing all that can be said in the name of good taste, unsurpassed needle work appeared, except that which the writer has seen in the County Cork, produced by the young ladies under the charge of the "Nun of Kenman." Embroidery of the finest order, and designs of the rarest character, like the ivy which clings to the walls of the Colosseum or flourishes in the neighborhood of St. Peters, plainly told the story of the care which had been exercised in order to give the lovers of art an idea of the opportunities the people of Nevada enjoy in an educational direction between the four walls of

MT. ST. MARY'S ACADEMY.

Silk, zephyr, white mulle and satin were combed in fantastic shape by nimble fingers of nature's pure and innocent daughters, and give a halo of light and life to the exercises which followed. To speak of the youth and beauty witnessed on the stage or the select audience which enjoyed the exhibition, there are not adjectives in the English vocabulary of an ordinary newspaper reporter to describe; suffice it to say that the whole affair was

EXEMPLAR.

And reflected great credit on the successful management of Mother Dolores and the Sisters, while the two good, kind-hearted and ever-smiling assistants of the young ladies about to enter into life's weary struggle—Miss Mary McGlaughlin and Miss Florence Hayward—proved indispensable to the success of the occasion. All races, nationalities and religions were represented in the audience, and all agreed that the virtuous and ennobling sentiments contained in the various essays, delivered by the young and hopeful graduates, were brim-full of that spirit of universality found among the teachers of the doctrines of Christianity, and the approbative manner in which they manifested their appreciation proved conclusively that "There is sufficient virtue left in the world to echo the sentiment: That it is phrase absurd to call a villain great." Each one vied with the other, even Raucher Sullivan, who occupied a seat on the stage, was in his glory over the superior demonstrations made by these young ladies. From the child of seven

SEVENTEEN

It seemed that they had grasped intuitively the idea which Mother Dolores endeavored to impress the audience with. But to readers of the Gazette none will feel more proud than the citizens of Reno, on learning that the graceful and accomplished daughter of ex-Sheriff Nash covered herself with glory in the delivery of an original essay on "What Constitutes True Nobility;" besides her rendition of the most famous poem the lamented

LONGFELLOW

Ever wrote, "Excisor," completely captured the house. The essay reflects great credit on the future possibilities.

RENO'S FAIR DAUGHTERS

And should appear in every paper in the land, Mlle. Nevada has already brought recognition to the Sagebrush State by virtue of her vocal superiority, which was developed through the generosity of Mrs. John W. Mackay. But I will not wait long to see her eclipsed by Miss F. Morris, of Empire. Miss F. Morris bids fair, both in vocal and instrumental music, to rapidly outdistance her class graduates of 1887, as she possesses one of the finest voices and the rarest genius we have witnessed in our twenty years of journalistic experience.

Misses Jennie Jones, of Genoa, Fannie Morris, of Empire, Phoebe Wise of Winnemucca, and Estelle Nash, of Reno, deserve especial praise for the unsurpassed manner in which they rendered

IL TROVATORE

On two pianos. Miss Morris particularly distinguished herself in her representation of the characteristic farcical and comic farce of "Peter Puffin," and kept the audience in roar of laughter during its continuance. In the piano solo of "Norma," Miss Jones, of Genoa, surprised everyone present. She is as lovable-looking and beautiful as a new blown rose, and gives promise of a very bright future. The recitation of Master Harry Thrall elicited unbounded praise from the intelligent audience, while the five little girls in "Birdie's Ball," gave immense satisfaction to their parents, as their actions plainly evidenced the successful influence of the good Sisters. Miss Amy Sherman's recitation met with commanding applause, while Miss Morris and Miss Combs in "Oh! Restless Sea" particularly distinguished themselves. Miss Heap naturally caught the genial sentiment of the audience by singing "The Meeting of the Waters," particularly because of the manner in which she

CARROLLED

The sweet sentiments of Moore's most favored theme. Lack of space forbids us to go still farther into this congenial theme, but this much we can say, that no better or more tastefully dressed, or more youthful and lovely a party ever gave the people of Reno such an exhibition of loveliness, beauty and virtue as did the graduating class of Mt. St. Mary's Academy in 1887. Their accomplishments and acquirements were self-apparent and bid fair to establish the reputation of Mother Dolores as an instructor. Of her be it said, assisted by the Sisters, that she made a grand success of the entertainment, and reflected satisfactorily on the great advantages enjoyed by our people in an educational and proprietary introduction of our girls to those more serious walks of life than are found within the four walls of a convent. All of the young ladies were attired in magnificent costumes. The closing ceremonies were befittingly observed and in the distribution of prizes

REV. FATHER KILEY,

Whose address we would like to publish in full, made many shed tears, while at the same time, made the young ladies feel happy. We give below a brief synopsis of it, as it touched all who had the pleasure of listening to it.

He stated that they were now to leave the school-room and its pleasant associates to commence the battle of life, and sincerely hoped that the instruction they had received had qualified them for the years to come. His adieu, and that of the noble-hearted Mother, who has carefully watched over and guarded the scholars submitted to her charge, was very affecting, and will be long remembered by the four graduates who have walked from the school-room, as scholars, for the last time. The entertainment throughout was very interesting, and was highly enjoyed.

The lateness of the hour rendered it impossible to give a more detailed description of the exercises.

This picture would be incomplete were I not to add to it the prognostications that last night were sent out into the world, that at least five of the young ladies who are born to greatness and graduated here, and who will lose in the race of life only because they may fail to remember the admonition given by the writer in the closing of a sketch he would love to dwell longer upon, and that they will readily understand, is accompanied by the blessing of all present last night, when he quotes the lovely lines: O Sanctissima, O Purissima! Dulcis Virgo Maria, Mater Amata intemerata, Ora pro nobis (from Sicilian Mariners Hymn.) Father Tuban, of Virginia City, accompanied Father Kiley, and occupied a prominent position on the stage. Too much praise cannot be extended to the Reno band for its generous and unsolicited presence in order to lend eclat to the occasion, and the spontaneous action of Mr. Denis Sullivan in his endeavor to make everybody feel at home, while Mr. Hodgkinson, the well-known druggist also deserves the thanks of the Academy and its friends.

The GAZETTE is under obligations to Mr. Hugh J. Mohan for the report of the commencement exercises at Mt. St. Mary's Academy last evening, published in this issue.

BISHOP WHITAKER'S SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
The Reverend Bishop Present-Flowers and Other Ornamen-tations-The Examinations and Comedy this Morning-Com-mencement Exercises this Af-ternoon-Essays of the Six Graduates.

The morning was bright and clear though somewhat warm. It, however, the girl shows the woman, as this morning gave promise of the day, the future of the six young lady graduates at Bishop Whitaker's School for Girls is bright indeed. Early this morning parents and friends of the pupils and school were seen coming into Reno from the country and adjoining towns, bringing flowers and other offerings to the young ladies to be honored by graduation from one the best private schools between Salt Lake and San Francisco. Several four-in-hands came down from Virginia City. Among the number who came this reporter saw Judge and Mrs. Rising, Colonel C. C. and Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. T. R. McGurn and her son Charles, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mygatt, Mrs. W. E. Sharon and others. Besides, there were representatives from Carson City, Gold Hill, Elko, Eureka, Winnemucca and other Nevada towns. Bishop O. W. Whitaker, of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, the esteemed patron of this school, was present, having just arrived from the East to be present on this occasion. The hall of the School for Girls, where the exercises were held, was beautifully decorated with mottoes and flowers, many of the latter having been sent in by friends from other places.

The exercises opened this morning at 9:15 A. M. with prayer, after which there was an oral examination in rhetoric. There is no art superior to that of language; in figurative speech, of which language is susceptible, there may be pictures more exquisite than those painted by a Raphael or an Angelo on canvas. No study is so indispensable to the literary student. The examination demonstrated that Miss Dickinson herself understands the beauties of English and knows how to teach others to appreciate them. Everyone speaks in praise of the examination in rhetoric. "Place aux Dames," a comedy, was excellently put upon the stage. The oral examination in astronomy, under the teacher, Miss Pease, was of special interest to the visitors present. After this examination the young lady students went through the gymnasium exercises, using rings and dumb bells. The evolutions were varied, lasting one half-hour, and were executed with such grace and perfection as greatly to delight the audience. These exercises were dispersed with excellent music.

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES PROPER.

The graduation exercises commenced this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. There were present even a much larger number of visitors than this morning. So large, in fact, was the attendance that a great many could not gain admittance to the hall. There were numerous additional floral contributions brought in, and it is doubtful if ever on any occasion there has been seen in Reno flowers in such profusion and variety in design. The musical portion of the programme, under the management of Miss Quaife, was excellently rendered. Following is a brief epitome of the essays of the graduates:

Miss Nettie Rising desired to say that although her words were trite, the sentiment prompting them is all her own. The class emblem, the Marguerite, itself an emblem of purity, may be regarded as indicative of her sincerity. Its golden center, like the great eye of heaven, permits no shadow of untruth, and its snowy petals are expressive of pure and single-hearted feeling. It has in itself the mystic property of foretelling the future, and as the presence of our friends is significant of interest in our personal welfare, it will unfold to them our future destiny.

In the poem that follows the salutatory the folly of anticipating the future is mentioned, but if wished the daisy is quite equal to the task, showing what the future may be. The invocation to the daisy is expressed in the little French sentiment:

Un peu, il m'aime, beaucoup Passionnément, pas du tout.

Each of the words contained in this sentiment is made the subject of comment, the petals of the daisy being plucked at each is named. Thirteen petals fall, and the prophecy appropriately falls upon the first words in the sentiment, Un peu.

The salutatorian then cheers and encourages her class with the thought that "little" is their happy fate—a little of joy, a little of sorrow, modest duties and simple pleasures, and an appeal is made to the daisy to teach all its lessons of simple content.

The essay, "Rainbow Gold," by Miss Esther Evans, spoke first of the apparent impossibility of failure. The world is so very old, so rich in experience that it would seem that each might succeed. This would be true if young Americans, young England and young Germany would heed the wisdom of their elders, but no one is willing to take his knowledge second-hand.

With the cheerful optimism of youth he feels as though he is destined to succeed, though others fail. Hence, he is found the world over, leading forlorn hopes and desperate charges. Repeated failures do not quench his courage, and if he is unfortunate ill-luck has been the cause.

This is illustrated in the sentiment of unlucky authors and youthful artists. Experience teaches that failure is written upon all human endeavor, and an appropriate commentary upon man's effort is seen in a painting representing an old sexton mending a crumbling churchyard wall, within which lie the last memorials of human aspirations. The painter has suitably named his work "Vanitas, Vanitatum." This closes the fifth act of human existence. The lights are out, the curtain falls, the actors all go home, but immediately fresh actors appear. Again the footlights gleam, and the curtain rises; and so the drama of existence is repeated in endless vista. How can we explain this high endeavor, this dauntless courage? Does not the constant belief in the gold of the rainbow argue its existence? No one except in his "bad quarter of an hour" thinks otherwise. In his better moments he knows that as long as man walks this earth there is no nobler work for the brain than to think, for the hand than to labor, for the heart than to throb with noble sentiments, and the reward is in the doing, "for the rapture of pursuing is the prize the vanquished gain."

The class history by Miss Annie Becker refers to an ancient custom, recently revived, of placing rose petals in China jars with spirits and perfumes, which preserve the frail blossoms with their fragrance until winter comes. When the jar is opened the sweets of a thousand roses fill the room, and June is once more at hand. In the same manner the class historian desires to make a rose jar, filling it not with dainty blossoms, but with memories and associations that will preserve the events of the last year at school. But here she is confronted by a difficulty. The record of the class is one of uninterrupted virtue, and such an existence is always devoid of charm. She finds herself in the condition of a young clergyman called upon to preach the funeral sermon of a centenarian. The young minister thought himself peculiarly fortunate until he found that the subject of his funeral oration had lived life remarkable for nothing, except that it had continued 100 years. In despair, he left the life of the obscure individual, and in his sermon briefly sketched the world's stirring record during that monotonous life. In the same manner the historian leaves her class, the obscure individual, and turns to the school, her miniature world. She first alludes to the changes with which the year has been filled. The spirit of change has pervaded the most conservative institutions of the school. Even attacking secret societies, always considered permanent, she alludes to those societies that have ended their brief career during the year, and to those that have begun their existence. She briefly reviews the E Pluribus Unum Club, the Dickens Dramatic Society, the Onward and Upward Society, the Peace Society, and a countless throng of little girls' associations. All these have lived out their little life.

A fitting tribute is paid to the Fifteen-Minute Society, the Lenten association of the school. Mention was made of the new societies of the year—the Owls, an enthusiastic club of the younger girls, and the Society of the Bronze Lamp, consisting of members of the Senior class. Reference is made to the fact that the Senior class has no distinctive class motto or badge. Fresh changes are found in another quarter, in the departure of teachers and other vicissitudes. Notwithstanding all this the Senior class has been mindful of duty and most unselfish in purpose. They have devoted their Saturday evenings to dramatic entertainments for the little ones, often incurring most ungrateful criticism from the younger girls of the school. Their tragedy has been ridiculed, and their comedy is said to possess no element of fun. A brief description is given of distinctive entertainments concluding with "An Evening with Dickens." The rose jar is once more opened to receive the memory of a recent evening, the brightest of the year, when with joy bells and illuminations the Bishop was welcomed home.

"Modern Windmills," by Miss Lotte Collins, is suggested by the heroic adventures of Don Quixote. This famous Knight, accompanied by his faithful squire, Sanchez Panza, had many startling experiences, not the least of these being the extraordinary encounter with the windmills, which, in imagination, were transformed into giants. The age of incredulity and superstition has indeed passed, but there are still windmills transformed by the active imagination into giants of surpassing strength and power. This is an age of pretense, and the modern windmills are the shams and follies, the imitations and affectations of the present time.

The new C. P. water tank here will be so arranged as to distance from the old one, that two engines can take water at the same time.

W. M. Havenor has been appointed foreman of the lumber camp of the Virginia City and Gold Hill Water Company at Incline, near Lake Tahoe.

Ophir Canyon, near Austin, is said by commercial travelers just in from there, to be the most prosperous mining section in the eastern part of the State.

The Argus Mining Company, of White Pine county, shipped last week bullion valued at $4,125. The Eberhardt-Monitor shipped bullion valued at $1,500.

W. J. Townsend, late proprietor of the Eastern Nevada stage line, will, on the 1st proximo, take charge of Gilmer, Salisbury & Co.'s system of staging in Montana.

The box-sheet indicates that the exercises of the Musical Department of the Bishop's School for Girls at the theater to-night will be largely attended. A genuine treat is in store for all who attend.

The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows yesterday elected W. W. Rogers, Grand Master; J. C. Hazlett, Deputy Grand Master; P. H. Mulcahy, Grand Warden; B. F. Wallace, Grand Secretary; George Tufly, Grand Treasurer.

The Virginia Chronicle says that the outer portion of the bulkheaded section of the Con. Cal. & Va. mine, into which carbolic acid gas has been injected, was entered yesterday by Superintendent Patten and a force of miners.

The seven-year-old son of J. C. Allen, of Surprise Valley, who recently accompanied his father to Reno, was killed at Duck Flat station a week ago to-day, by being run over by a loaded wagon.

C. S. Young, of the GAZETTE, feels grateful for the many complimentary things said by Nevada and Ohio papers about his recent address delivered at Washington, D. C., before the Department of Superintendence, National Educational Association.

The love of all thy sons encircle thee,
The love of all thy daughters cherish thee,
The love of all thy people comfort thee,
Till God's own love shall set thee at His side again.

"Lamps and Pitchers," by Miss Jeannette Dyer, began by speaking of the charms of generic portraits, whether executed by the pen or pen cil. This explains the interest felt in creations of fiction, and the so-called ideal heads of the portrait painter. These pictures are open to criticism. They reflect the personality of the artist. Composite photography has found an escape from this difficulty. In the same manner the present writer desires to place upon her mental camera two or three characters that shall produce an ideal character. The two chosen are Evangeline, the maid Acadia, and Hawthorne's Hilda, the lovely heroine of "The Marble Faun." The resulting type is a woman skilled in all graceful household arts, but lifted above care and perplexity by the spiritual element of her nature. These qualities are shadowed forth by the "Pitcher," carried in the hands of Evangeline, and the "Lamp" in the virgin's shrine, so constantly tended by the devout Hilda.

The valedictorian cannot understand

Emerson's sentiment that "Calamities have their compensations."

She finds this always a paradox, and never more than when a group of venerable sages approach to claim her first farewells.

She recognizes in them the authors of her text books—her close companions during the school year. In a most affecting manner she parts with Worcester, the great lexicographer; with Professor Haven, the author of her psychology; with Steele, of astronomy; with the various characters in literature introduced by Bottae and with Barnes, the author of "Evidences of Christianity." She lightly bids adieu to the girls and teachers of the school, and with affectionate gratitude pronounces her farewell to the Bishop.

AN OPEN LETTER.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., June 3, 1887. Dr. Prentice, 626 Sutter street, San Francisco—My Dear Doctor:—Please allow me to congratulate you (as well as myself) on the success of your treatment in my case. As I told you when we first met two months ago, I had suffered untold agony for twenty-one years with the piles, often being unable to perform any manual labor for weeks at a time, being compelled to resort to morphine to deaden the pain. Life seemed a burden and hardly worth living, the constant pain and irritation driving me nearly crazy. After trying many remedies without any permanent relief, I happened to see one of your advertisements and concluded to try once more, and thank the good Lord and Dr. Prentice, I am now once more a well man, and again life seems worth living. I should be glad if some of my suffering friends of Norwalk, Florida, and Scowhegan, Maine, could be treated by you. Yours, with gratitude,

ROBERT WILLIAMS.

P. S.—At present I can be found at Spaulding's Saw Works, 17 and 19 Fremont street, S. F.
